The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The Legislature finds and declares all of the following:

(a) It is widely acknowledged that the ability to read is essential to the acquisition of a good education and to increase the prospects of a productive life and that general literacy among our people is essential to our reputation in the community of nations.

(b) In the acknowledgment of this truth, the Governor and the Legislature in recent years have invested heavily to ensure that all California's children acquire excellent reading skills and have engaged with students in reading programs and undertaken other literacy programs and activities to ensure that the love and enjoyment of books is a significant component of the education of every child.

(c) The arts generally have been shown to have a positive impact on the ability of our children to learn, to create greater interest in academic programs, and to enrich and enliven the great cultural heritage of California.

(d) California's poets have long been acknowledged as among the most prestigious in the nation, and include numerous Nobel Prize, Pulitzer Prize, National Book Award, and other significant award recipients, and at least three United States' Poets Laureate. California's poets also come from every ethnic, religious, and geographic region of the state, and have often provided a great source of inspiration to their communities, students and other young people, and the people of California generally.

(e) The California Poets in the Schools program, in which professional poets work with children in Kindergarten through 12th grade in almost every county in the state, has created great interest in the poetic arts among California's children and youth. This interest is evidenced by the large number of reading series, chapbook publications, poetry-based Web sites, which have among the largest number of "hits" of all Web site types, and other popular poetic activities.

(f) The United States, many states, and many cities have established the position of Poet Laureate, using vigorous and competitive appointment procedures and requiring recipients to engage in specific public projects.
